HUSBAND OF FORMER MOKENA GIRL MEETS WITH TRAGIC DEATH

The many Mokena friends of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Randolph of Joliet, were greatly shocked Sunday evening to learn of the tragic death of Mr. Randolph who was employed as a switchman on the Chicago and Alton R. R. and was killed in the Alton yards at Joliet Sunday afternoon while switching cars. According to the story told it appears that he and his brother were working together. Erwin was preparing to couple up some cars. He had given a signal to his brother to signal the engineer to back up which he did. When his brother failed to get a signal to stop, he gave the signal himself. He was surprised not to see his brother and upon looking for him, he was horrified to find his mangled body lying underneath the train. It is thought he tripped and fell between the moving cars while making the coupling.

Mr. Randolph was 34 years old. He was a World War veteran, having served overseas for 13 months as a member of the 31st infantry. He left America April 3, 1918.

He was united in marriage to Miss Minnie Schmidt, daughter of Mrs. Emma Schmidt of Mokena, on June 26, 1920. There were no children born to the union.

Mr. Randolph was engaged in building a home and had it partly completed at the time he was killed. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the St. John English Lutheran Church at Joliet, Rev. Heilman and Rev. Wm. Kreis, the latter of the St. John Evangelical Church of Mokena, officiating. Burial in Elmhurst cemetery.

The deceased is survived by his widow, his mother, Mrs. Augusta Randolph, three brothers, Louis Adolph and Sidney and three sisters, Miss Vera and Miss Virginia of Joliet.

Chicken Thieves Visit Chicken House of Mokena Police Chief; Leave Ax

Officer John Frisch of Mokena reports that he was visited by chicken thieves recently and that about fifty of his chickens were stolen. The thief or thieves left an ax behind in their hurry to get away. Officer Frisch says he still has the ax but that he has sharpened the ax so the owner of the ax can chop the chickens heads off at one clip. Officer Frisch says he is holding the ax awaiting its owners return.

Tinley Park Makes Extensive Walk and Street Improving

Tinley Park is being much improved with new concrete walks. A new walk is being built from the concrete road to the school grounds and the walk from the Carl Funk corner to the Hick & Mesenbrink market is being made higher. The old walk was below the street level and was under water in wet weather.

New walks have also been laid on the south side of town and a number of streets have been given a dressing of crushed stone or cinders. These improvements have been sorely needed and are much appreciated.

BROKEN AIR HOSE CAUSE OF WRECK ON J ROAD AT FRANKFORT SUNDAY.

The E. J. & E. railroad traffic was tied up at Frankfort Sunday morning when a freight train was wrecked at the Elsner crossing. A broken air hose was the cause of the wreck. Four empty tank cars were derailed and thrown in the ditch. The wrecker was called out and after a few hours had the wreckage cleared away. Several hobos who were riding on the tank cars when the crash came, fled from the scene of the wreck as soon as they extricated themselves from the wreckage. Luckily, no one was hurt.

La Follette Principals Ex- pounded at Street Rally In Mokena Saturday

A political street meeting on the La Follette—Wheeler campaign was held in Mokena at the D. Kolber corner last Saturday night. W. H. Donaldson of Joliet was the speaker. He pointed out that La Follette has made a wonderful, clean record in public life and showed what he will do for labor if he is elected.

Mr. Donaldson said that money is not wealth, but is just a certificate of labor showing what labor has been performed. He principally outlined the Wisconsin Senator's record and why he should be elected as our next president. The railroads, vested interests, etc., were flayed.

Copies of "Labor," the national labor paper and copies of pamphlets showing what Senator La Follette and the Progressives have fought for and accomplished, were distributed.

Mr. Donaldson showed that speculation never created anything of value for the community and nation. He showed that the hope of Lincoln's plain people, the farmers and laboring man, who earn their living by toil and not by gambling and speculation, is in the election of the La Follette—Wheeler ticket.

It is up to the people to say who shall run this nation, they or the old parties, both of whom are so corrupt that one is as bad as the other, and both are tools of Wall Street. But the only way in which the people can have their say is by casting their ballots on Nov. 4th next. Everyone should vote regardless of what ticket they chose. The stay at home voters are no good for their country or themselves. They either have not got intelligence enough to understand the great privilege they possess in the ballot, or they are so darned lazy and shiftless that they are satisfied with any condition imposed upon them. The real red blooded voter votes according to his convictions is anxious to have good government enthroned that is for the welfare of the nation. Be a citizen of the worth while kind and go out and vote Nov. 4th.

JUDGE DREW GAVE WONDERFUL ADDRESS AT MOKENA FRI. EVE

Mokena people had the privilege of hearing a real vital, true to life address Friday night when Judge S. J. Drew of the Will County Probate Court appeared on the program given at the M. E. Church that night.

Judge Drew took as his subject, Dr. Van Dyke's famous book, "The Mansion." He portrayed in living words, the story of a rich man in New York who had gained great wealth but would not do anything for any one else unless he saw that he was making a good investment and was going to get something out of it. The story showed how he finally had a vision in which he dreamed that he had died and had gone to heaven, but was greatly surprised to find that where the poor and lowly people he knew on earth had inherited beautiful mansions, he received but a hut in a barren location.

When he complained of this, the keeper said that they could only build mansions with whatever material was sent. People who had served others and had done noble and good deeds and lived Christ like lives, sent material ahead from which beautiful mansions were built. But those people who only live for a good time while on earth and who seek pay for every turn they make are only sending material from which huts are made.

Judge Drew brought out a new and different meaning than is the ordinary conception of the famous Bible passage "In my Father's House are many Mansions." He showed that the mansions of the hereafter will be built according to the lives we live upon earth. People who are selfish and build churches, schools, etc., just for their own glory, who refuse to do a good turn for anyone else unless they can see a big profit in it for themselves, cannot expect to deserve them.

Judge Drew showed that we must serve one another and do things without expecting a big profit or return of money for doing so. Money is not the only power in the world and is only good when rightly used. In all, his address was food for thought.

Robert Oestreich played a trombone solo. This was his first public appearance and he did remarkably well. Alvin Spiess played the violin and his numbers were much enjoyed. Mrs. Hall sang a solo which was much enjoyed.

We hope that it will be our good pleasure to again have Judge Drew with us at some future date. Those who did not hear him missed a great deal.

Don't Miss The Boy Scout Dance at Tinley Sat. Night

The Tinley Park Scouts are progressing wonderfully with their arrangements for their big dance to be given at the Saenger Hall on Saturday evening, October 18. They have succeeded in getting the Rays Orchestra to furnish the music and they know all will be satisfied with this music. The boys will make a house to house canvass with tickets for the dance the profits of which will go towards buying instruments for their band, so let all the public spirited people of Tinley Park get back of the boys and help them to achieve the object they are striving for. Let us all help to make this dance a big success and put it over big.

Tinley Motor Cop Back On Job After Accident

Elmer Keuch, Tinley Park's motorcycle cop is on duty again after being laid up as a result of injuries when he collided with a wagon while riding his motorcycle on the highway near Midlothian. Officer Keuch says the wagon which was used for hauling stone had been left standing close to the road and he did not see it and struck it with his motorcycle. The impact threw Mr. Keuch with such force that he was knocked senseless. He was taken to the St. Francis hospital at Blue Island. After injuries to his head were dressed he was taken home. It is said that a dam-

Judgments Returned Against Two Mokena Men

Mokena is furnishing quite a lot of employment to the lawyers of late by way of suits to recover old debts owed to its business people. The past week W. H. Bechstein, Mokena grain dealer brought suit against Edward McGovney, also of Mokena for $289.30 which Mr. Bechstein claimed was due on a bill. The case came up in the court of Justice Hawk in Joliet and a judgment was returned in favor of Mr. Bechstein. Krapp Bros., of Mokena also brought suit against Mr. McGovney in the circuit court on a claim of $316.64 and were also awarded a judgment. Both of these judgments were paid by Mr. McGovney, who recently received his share of the estate of his father the late Elijah McGovney of Mokena. Orr & Brumund represented the creditors and attorney H. Rehn represented Mr. McGovney.

On Tuesday morning two more judgments were filed against Fred Fox of Mokena, one claim being that of Henry Stellwagen of Mokena for $152.50, the other that of H. H. Sabin of Marley for $37. Orr & Brumund of Joliet represented the creditors.

CHICAGO AMERICAN RE- PORTER INTERVIEWS BULLETIN ON LIBERIA

The Liberia Land and Development Company's plans for promoting a colored colony in New Lenox township are creating great interest. Tuesday a reporter of the Chicago Evening American called at the News-Bulletin for information on the project. While he was at the office Mr. George Holle and Mr. Andrew J. Lane, promoters of the project in question also called at the News-Bulletin office and the Chicago reporter interviewed them at the News-Bulletin office and later visited the proposed new site with Mr. Holle and Mr. Lane.

Offers Farm For Rent

Great excitement was created in Frankfort Monday noon when Frank Chamberlain over of the 445 acre farm on which the proposed colored colony is to be located in New Lenox township, accompanied by Jerome Stevens of Joliet, put up signs in the business places of the village advertising the farm for rent or for sale cheap. Mr. Chamberlain intimated that the deal with the Liberia people was off.

When interviewed by the News-Bulletin regarding this matter, the Liberia promoters stated that Mr. Chamberlain was merely trying to force an issue and that if he did enter any deal with some one else for renting or selling the farm, they would institute damage against him.

Robbers Ransack Mokena Home; Get Nothing

ritable, backward in school, they did all their work for nothing

When Harvey Frick came home about one o'clock with his auto he found the front door of his mother's place wide open. When he turned on the lights he saw that the drawers of a bureau in a spare bedroom had been dumped on the floor and their contents scattered about. The sheets and pillow cases had been stripped from the bed and the cushion covers were torn from some chairs. Mr. Frick told his mother who was sleeping upstairs of what had happened. Upon making a careful search it was found that nothing had been stolen however. Mrs. Frick said she had heard a noise downstairs but thought it was her son coming in the house. It is thought that the robbers were frightened away when Mr. Frick drove in the yard with his car.

"The Birth of a Nation" Covers Essential Details Of Civil War History

D. W. Griffith's master production, "The Birth of a Nation", a United Artists release, will be the attraction at the Marley Church, commencing an engagement of 3 days on October 22.

It will be brought here in exact reproduction of the greatest attraction which New York recently set a record by playing to more people in two weeks time than had ever before gathered in a play house. This was the massive Capitol Theatre where over 150,000 persons witnessed the spectacle in a fortnight.

The merest statement regarding "The Birth of a Nation" leaps to superlatives because there is no other form in which it can be written. Simple facts in relation to its developments sound extravagant until you have seen the production and realized a tithe of its sweep and power.

Lesson for October 19

THE PARABLE OF THE SOWER

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:1-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—The sower soweth the word.—Mark 4:14.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Garden of the Heart.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Good Soil for Good Seed.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Receive and Use God's Word.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How May I Improve the Soil of My Heart?

The method of teaching by parables was not employed by Jesus until the rulers had set their hearts against Him. When, in the light of His wonderful works, they turned against Him and attributed His works to the Devil (Mark 3:22) He denounced them in scathing terms and began to teach them by parables in fulfillment of Isaiah 6:10. The parabolic method of teaching makes clear the truth to those who love it and conceals it from those who dislike it.

A great multitude gathered to Him at the seaside (v. 1), so that, in order to escape the pressure of the crowd, He was obliged to enter a boat. From the boat as a pulpit He taught many things in parables. In this parable the sower and the seed are the same in all instances, but the results are entirely different. The difference lies in the condition of the soil. The central purpose of the teaching of this parable is to show that the results of preaching the Word depend upon the condition of the human heart.

I. The Wayside (vv. 4; 15).

The wayside means the track beaten down by the hoofs of animals and the feet of men. Because the soil was unbroken and uncultivated the seed could not get beneath the surface, therefore was devoured by the fowls that came along (v. 4). The great truth taught here is that the heart unbroken and hard is not fit soil for the Gospel. Such a heart it penetrates not, but lies loosely upon the surface. It is not recognized as God's means for restoring them unto Himself. While in this condition the evil one finds some way to snatch away the truth. The fowls that devour the seed represent the agents of Satan (v. 15).

II. The Stony Ground (vv. 5, 6; 16, 17).

This means not stones mixed with soil, but stones with a thin layer of soil on them. With such conditions a seed cannot get beneath the surface. The great lesson is that hearts superficially impressed receive the Word with joy, but when affliction or persecution arises for the Word's sake, immediately they are offended. They wither away and die.

III. The Thorny Ground (vv. 7; 18, 19).

In this case the ground is good, but has thorns in it. It is mellow enough and has sufficient depth, but has not been cleaned of the thorns. Such really hear the Word, but "the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the Word, and it becometh unfruitful" (v. 19). The thorny ground hearers of this age are those:

1. Who are so immersed in worldliness, business and anxious cares that the good seed cannot mature.
2. Who are rich. Anxious care in business brings riches and the effect of riches is to blunt the spiritual perception of men and women, thereby rendering them unsuspicious to the call of God, to higher things in life.
3. Who are running after the pleasures of life. All these things choke the Word. Many of the enjoyments of the world may be innocent in themselves, but they attract so much attention and consume so much energy and time that one has not time for Bible reading, meditation and prayer.

IV. The Good Ground (vv. 8; 20).

This ground differs from all the rest. It is soft and mellow, deep and moist; therefore, is capable of bringing forth fruit, some an hundred, some sixty and some thirty-fold, indicating different degrees of fruitfulness even of the good ground. In the measure that the heart is kept free from worldliness, riches and pleasure, the good seed matures.

Skin so sore could not touch water to it
Resinol relieves it within few hours

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25:—"I am so grateful to you for your splendid products and for what they have accomplished for me that I feel I must give you the details."

In attempting to improve the appearance of my chin, I used a soap which had been recommended for that purpose but which proved to be too harsh for when I washed off the lather, the skin came with it. I applied cold cream, but the damage was too severe to yield to so mild an agent. My husband consulted our neighborhood druggist and asked if it would not be advisable to call in our family doctor. The druggist said: "You do not need a doctor in this case. Get a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap and have your wife use them according to directions."

So my husband bought the Resinol products and hopefully brought them home.

My skin was so tender and sore that I could not touch water to it, so I cleansed it gently first with pure olive oil and then applied the Resinol. I used a soft handkerchief that night for protection. In the morning, I bathed it gently with warm water and Resinol Soap, rinsing off with tepid water, and I could hardly believe that such a miracle of healing could occur during one night. The raw surface had flamed over and now looked only like a bad case of sunburn. I kept my face anointed with Resinol all that day and by night the improvement was so great that I was able to go out.

This experience is now only a memory for my face is softer, fairer and smoother than ever. A jar of Resinol is my best pal in the future and I will never be without it. (Signed) Mrs. C. P. Tapley, 1028 8th St., N. W.

YOUNG CARR

SYNOPSIS.—Thrown from his auto in a New York village, a man is carried unconscious into the home of a Miss Edith Grant. A doctor discovers he has been shot, fatally. Consciousness returning he babbles of "millions." He begs that Henry Archman, millionaire resident of the vicinity, be sent for, declaring he has important papers for him. Archman cannot be reached by phone, but word is sent that his secretary is on the way. Archman, announcing himself as Archman's secretary, Akin, arrives, talks with Morbach, and leaves with a package he gives him. Morbach dies. Archman's arrival, with his secretary, reveals that the man posing as Akin is an impostor. Archman denounces Edith Grant as a girl endeavoring to share his son Harry. Archman, it appears, has millions made in Chicago, has yielded to the importunities of his family—his wife, daughters Nellie and Bessie (seventeen years old), and son Harry—and moved to New York in an endeavor to gain recognition by the Four Hundred. They have not succeeded. Mrs. Archman is bitter over her failure, particularly mourning the fact that she has not been "taken up" by a Mrs. Van Kull. Archman orders Nellie to get ready for a long journey with him. He refuses to reveal their destination to his wife, declaring it is "not his secret." Nellie tells Bess she is in love with James Carr, a youth working on Archman's ship, El Rio. She gives Bess a message for him. Archman and Nellie depart. Harry tells Bess of his determination to marry Edith Grant. Mrs. Archman, with the explanation that it was among Morbach's papers, and suggesting she forward it to Mr. Archman. Lord George Caruthers, traveling Englishman, arrives at the Archman home, by invitation. He makes a good impression.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

Mrs. Archman looked scandalized, and Bess, evidently fearing that she off his cap. "I beg pardon!" he exclaimed.

Bess' teeth flashed. "You needn't," she answered. "You don't know me. You're Mr. Carr, aren't you?"

The young man nodded. "I can't deny it," he laughed.

"Well, I'm little sister. Big sister gave me a message for you. And I've been wondering whether I ought to give it to you or not."

An expression of sudden intelligence swept over the young fellow's face. "Oh! You're Miss Bess Archman," he said. "I ought to have guessed, though if you don't mind my saying so, you don't look a bit like your sister." His face changed. "You will give me the message, won't you?" he begged. "If you knew how hard these three days have been to me you wouldn't hesitate."

Bess had been staring at him frankly. "I like you," she said suddenly. "Shake!" She held out her hand.

The young man grasped it ardently. "Thank you! Thank you!" he cried gratefully.

Bess' eyes twinkled. "Nellie said to tell you that she was sorry she couldn't come to the ship as she had promised. She said you seemed to have something particular to tell her, and that, if you had, for you to tell it to me and I would send it on."

The young man was evidently thinking rapidly. "I can't say all I would like, even to you." He laughed, with a sudden brilliant smile. "But I will say this: I love your sister and I wanted to ask her to marry me. Just as I was about to speak, she met in my sister's house."

"Your sister's house?"

"Edith Grant is my sister. That's her stage name. And now your sister has gone, thinking all sorts of things about me, and I can't get to her to tell her, and I don't know where to write."

"I Like You," She Said Suddenly. "Shake!" She Held Out Her Hand.

Bess hesitated. The young man's very apparent misery went to her heart. "Just between you and me," she said, at last, "Captain Bunker has orders to meet father and Nellie somewhere. You might send a letter by him. But remember, it's a dead secret."

"Oh!" Carr's eyes widened. "So that's where—" He broke off, and stared over the girl's shoulder. "Who is that standing with the lady by the companionway?" he asked.

Bess' eyes followed the direction of his. "That's Lord George Caruthers," she said. "Do you know him?"

Carr's eyes grew introspective. "I am not sure," he said. "He looks to me like—er—" He broke off. "Well, maybe I'm wrong," he said. "But he certainly looks like—somebody I know." His expression showed plainly that his thoughts, whatever they were, were not pleasant.

Mrs. Archman's glance, roving about the deck, settled on her daughter and Carr. She flushed, and started instantly toward the two, over the cluttered deck. "Bess!" she called, as she drew nearer.

Bess faced her calmly. "I'm so glad you've come, mother," she said. "I want you to meet Mr. Carr. He's superintending the repairs on father's ship. Mr. Carr, this is my mother, and Lord George Caruthers."

Lord George nodded in friendly fashion. Mrs. Archman, however, glared icily. The temperature had dropped. "Oh, yes!" she said, with a very slight inclination of her head. "You're the carpenter, I believe, Mr. Carr." She glanced at the chips on the deck.

Carr smiled. If he was abashed he did not show it. "I'm trying to be one," he answered coolly, "but I'm not making very much of a fist at it. I'm always smashing my thumb," he ended confidentially.

"Ah!" Mrs. Archman raised her brows. Then she turned her back deliberately. "Come, Bess," she said. "Captain Bunker is just coming on board."

Bess nodded. "All right, mother," she said. Then she turned to the young man. "Good morning, Mr. Carr."

Carr's eyes were perplexed as he stared after the three. Particularly did his eyes follow the broad back of Lord George. "So that's mother's plan, is it," he murmured disgustedly. "Confound the fellow. I know I've seen him before, and it wasn't in England, either. Where the dickens was it?"

As the four reached the gangplank Captain Bunker came up it. "I'm sorry I wasn't on board when you came," he said. "I hope Mr. Collins made you at home."

"Mr. Collins was very nice," responded Mrs. Archman. "But I wanted to see you particularly, captain."

"Certainly. Will you come into the chart house, madam?"

Mrs. Archman nodded and followed. "Captain," she said, as she took her seat, "where are you to meet my husband?"

If Captain Bunker was surprised he did not show it. "I don't know, madam," he said. "I'm sailing under sealed orders."

"What does that mean?"

"I have a sealed letter, which I am not to open till I get out to sea. I can't tell you where I am going, because I don't know myself."

"Then you don't know whether you are to meet him on an island? It is important that I should know."

Captain Bunker shook his head. "I know absolutely nothing," he protested.

"Very well; then listen to me," Mrs. Archman recounted the events that had started Archman southward, and told of the arrival of the map. "I'm sure this map was part of the stolen papers, and I am very anxious to get it to my husband. I came down here to ask you to take it and give it to him when you saw him. But I have changed my mind since I came."

"Yes," the captain did not know what was coming.

"Yes! For reasons of my own, I want to get my son and daughter away from New York. How many state-rooms can you have ready for passengers by the time you are ready to sail?"

The captain counted up on his fingers. "Six," he said.

"That will be enough, captain. We will all go south with you."

"But—my dear madam!" Captain Bunker caught his breath. "I can't take you. I have no orders."

"I'm giving them to you now, Mr. Archman did not forbid it, did he?"

"No; but—"

"Very well, then; it's settled. I tail. Besides, I'm not easy about Henry. I want to see him and give him that map myself. Yes! We'll join you, captain."

Captain Bunker shook his head. "I'd be delighted to have you, Mrs. Archman," he said. "But I can't take you without orders from the head of the firm. I can't really. If you'll telegraph to Chicago and get them to instruct me—"

"Very well! I'll do it. Meanwhile, get ready for us."

Captain Bunker nodded. He knew when to make a virtue of necessity, did Captain Bunker. "Of course," he agreed. "I'll be delighted to have you all on board, you know. I just couldn't take the responsibility myself."

"I understand. By the way, captain—do all the workmen on the ship go with us?"

"Oh, no! Most of them are carpenters connected with the docks. Young Carr is in charge of them."

"Who?"

"Young Carr. Yonder he is." The captain pointed. "Most of the men are in his charge. We are shipping a new crew, you know, but none of them are on board yet."

"Er—who is Mr. Carr? What do you know about him?"

Captain Bunker looked surprised. "Nothing much," he answered. "He's attached to the yards here. He seems a pleasant young fellow, though a little close-mouthed and inclined to be mysterious."

Will Mrs. Archman's pursuit of her husband fit in with his plans—or frustrate them?

Pressure of Steam

Modern steam boiler practice is catching up with pure science. Some engineers may have remembered at high school or college learning something of what is called the "critical temperature" or "critical pressure" of a gas, the former being the temperature above which the gas might not be condensed at any pressure, and the latter being the pressure when the critical temperature was attained. All this was considered "pure science" or "high-brow stuff" with no application to practical affairs. But the critical temperature and critical pressure of steam are only 706 degrees Fahrenheit and 3,200 pounds a square inch, and boilers are now being used at pressures of more than 1,000 pounds with the tendency toward higher and higher pressures. Many interesting things happen to both water and steam when near the critical point and now practical engineers are beginning to take keen interest in what was formerly thought fit only for laboratory discussion.

Have Characteristics

of Prehistoric Man

The natives of the island of New Caledonia, which lies in the Pacific ocean several hundred miles east of Australia, have many physical resemblances to the Neanderthal race of prehistoric man, according to reports received at Washington from Prof. Fritz Sarasin, a French anthropologist.

The New Caledonians are regarded as among the lowest and most primitive of savages, a fact that gives additional point to Professor Sarasin's findings. He states that in a few respects they seem to be even more primitive than the long-extinct Neanderthals, notably in their chinlessness and the similar structure of their noses. In other respects they are less primitive, but in general there is a singular and striking resemblance.—Science Service.

$30,000 FIRE ON MALTBY FARM

FORMER MALTBY FARM NEAR MOKENA SCENE OF BIG FIRE WED. NIGHT; ALL STOCK SAVED

A fire of unknown origin broke out about 7:15 o'clock Wednesday night on the former Maltby farm a half mile north of Mokena and entailed a loss estimated at $30,000. Only about $8,000 insurance was carried it is understood. When the fire was first discovered the entire west end of a large barn was in flames. The farm is owned by Wm. A. Colvin, Jr., of Chicago and is managed by J. W. Murray. Mrs. Murray called the Mokena telephone manager about 7:15 o'clock and told her of the fire. Help was quickly summoned and the Frankfort chemical truck was called out. The fire had made such rapid headway that the buildings were doomed. After a hard fight all the stock was rescued. One pig came out of the burning building on fire. It was rolled around a few times and the flames smothered and the life of Mr. Parker was saved. It is said quite a number of chickens were burned.

The buildings destroyed consisted of a large barn 130 feet long, another barn somewhat smaller, a number of other smaller buildings and two silos. Six thousand bushels of oats, 120 tons of hay, silage, a large quantity of straw, machinery, and other contents of the structures fell prey to the flames.

The buildings being all built together there was no chance to save them. Two large dwellings standing about 100 feet from the barn were saved from burning after a very hard fight. The Frankfort chemical company rendered splendid service and after a hard fight the dwellings were finally out of danger. The furniture was all moved out and later moved in again. In their hurry to get the furniture out some of the fire fighters smashed the windows and threw the furniture out.

A tool shed at the north end of the farm yard was the only out building left standing besides the two dwellings.

The wind carried sparks over to the George Marti farm across the road from the former Maltby farm and the fire fighters put in some busy moments putting out the tiny bits as well as the larger burning embers which were falling on the straw stack and were carried by a strong breeze into an open barn on the Marti farm. None of the members of the Marti family were at home at the time of the fire, having gone to Joliet earlier in the evening and when on their way home saw the reflection of the fire in the sky they at first thought the fire was on their farm.

The flames leaped high in the air and lit up the sky for miles around and hundreds of people were attracted to the scene of the fire from many miles about. The highway was literally choked with the large number of cars.

What disposition will be made of the stock has not been made known as yet. This farm was owned by Ben Marti who sold it to E. V. Maltby board of trade man who resided on this farm for a number of years and then located on a farm at Midlothian. Over a year ago or thereabout the property passed into the hands of Wm. A. Colvin, the present owner.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Dr. Frederick R. Green,
Editor of "Health."

THE DANGER OF BEING BEAUTIFUL

MOST of us think of doctors as highly scientific, dignified men who are only interested in dreadful and mysterious diseases which they designate by long Latin names. Yet doctors today are giving more time and attention to the every-day details of life than ever before.

At the meeting of the American Medical association held at Chicago Dr. H. M. Cole of Cleveland, Ohio, read a paper, which was widely discussed, on dermatoses due to cosmetics. Translated into every-day English, this means inflammation of the skin caused by powder and rouge. Almost every girl and woman uses some kind of powder.

In our grandmothers' day a woman who rouged her cheeks or painted her lips was regarded as "fast" if not actually disreputable.

The face powder most generally used a generation ago was French rice powder, a fine starch made from the rice grain. While this is practically harmless in itself, it has two dangers. Being a vegetable substance, it ferments and decomposes when damp. If the pores of the skin become clogged with it, the powder may become rancid and cause small abscesses or even boils. The second danger is that, if the rice powder gets in the eyes it may cause irritation.

Hair dyes are more dangerous. Some of them contain lead acetate, a powerful chemical which not only injures the hair but may also cause severe irritation and poisoning of the skin.

This substance is also present in some facial creams and enamels. Its continued use may cause lead poisoning.

Mercury or quicksilver is used in some of the cheaper face bleaches, facial creams, freckle lotions and powders. This powerful drug may cause severe poisoning or may result in a bluish discoloration of the skin. Arsenic is also found in some hair tonics, as well as salicylic acid, carbolic acid and other equally powerful and dangerous chemicals. Many hair tonics contain wood alcohol, a dangerous and irritating poison.

The most dangerous drug of all, however, has no common name. It is known to chemists as paraphenylenediamine. It is so dangerous that its use is forbidden by law in France, Germany and Austria. It is widely used in this country in hair dyes and fur dyes and in the mascara used to stain the eyebrows and to bead the eyelashes. This drug is not only highly irritating to the skin, but may affect the eyes or even cause death.

There is little if any objection to powders or rouges provided they are pure. Hair dyes and facial bleaches may contain strong and injurious chemicals.

GETTING READY TO RESIST THE ENEMY

THE summer is the most healthful season of the year. While the warm days may be oppressive and sometimes exhausting, the death rate is lower in July, August and September than in any other part of the year. But in the late fall and winter sickness increases, "colds," bronchitis, influenza and pneumonia become common. By February and March they have reached their height. There are more deaths from pneumonia during the early spring than any other time of the year.

There are many reasons for this. Our vitality and resistance to infection have been lowered by the long winter. The early spring days, bright and promising, but raw and chilling, tempt us to exposure that we wouldn't think of in midwinter.

The disease germs gain in strength during the winter months when they have passed from one victim to another and so have become stronger than they were in the fall.

In the summer we live outdoors or under outdoor conditions. Our houses are not heated. Our windows are open day and night.

When cold weather comes, we shut our windows, put on storm doors and start our furnaces. We wear heavy clothes, we eat more heavy food, we take less exercise, we perspire less, we take fewer baths, we drink less water.

Our bodies become clogged up with waste products, our lungs get less fresh air, our blood has less oxygen and our resistance is lowered. When one member of the household or one person in an office develops a "cold" it runs through the whole group, each one of whom, perhaps, becomes a new center for spreading the disease.

During the fall and early winter, make special efforts to keep fit. Don't overheat your house, don't wear more clothes than you need. Work and sleep with your windows open. Drink plenty of water. Don't eat heavy food, but have plenty of fruits and vegetables. Take some exercise each day in the open air. Avoid crowds. Get eight hours sleep every night. Don't neglect "colds." Don't get wet or chilled. Don't get "run down." At the first sign of infection, especially if you are over forty, go to bed and stay there until you are well.

RAIL STRIKERS DENIED HEARING

Court Refuses to Review Charges of Plot to Obstruct Mails.

Washington.—Convictions of R. H. Clements and other former employees of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad on charges of conspiracy to obstruct the mails and interfere with interstate commerce during the shopmen's strike of 1922 will stand so far as the Supreme court is concerned. The body, among other actions, refused to review the case.

The court held that land grant railroads which accept without protest settlement from the government of transportation charges based on the reduced land grant rates cannot later bring suit to recover full rates. The decision came in upholding the findings of lower courts in a case brought by the Northern Pacific railroad, which charged land grant rates for transporting National Guard troops to federal encampments, but later contended that it was entitled to full rates.

A case brought by the Central Union Trust company of New York, questioning the basis upon which the federal capital stock must be assessed under the revenue act of 1916, was dismissed by the court for lack of jurisdiction.

Certain lands erroneously granted to the state as school lands by the secretary of the interior were ordered returned to the Yakima Indians of Washington, with the consent of the state of Washington.

The court dismissed for want of jurisdiction, a case against the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet republic, brought by M. Wulfsohn & Co., raising the question whether the Soviet can be sued in the courts of the United States.

It was announced by the court that an appeal would be granted in the case questioning the right of the Radio Corporation of America to bring suit as licensee of the Deforest Radio Telephone and Telegraph company against the Independent Wireless Telephone company for an alleged infringement of a patent owned by the Deforest concern.

The Coronado Coal company submitted a motion to have the hearing in the Coronado Coal case advanced, holding that District No. 21 of the United Mine Workers of America was not guilty of violation of the Sherman "antitrust" law by restraining interstate commerce during the Arkansas strike.

The court refused to consider whether Henry Ford owes Edgar S. Huff $11,000,000 as royalty upon magnetos used upon 4,500,000 automobiles.

Wales Leaves Chicago After Many Busy Hours

Chicago.—Tossed and buffeted by the roaring crowds who hailed and greeted him on every hand, but still smiling and good-natured, the world's best known young man, Edward, prince of Wales and heir apparent to the British throne, left Chicago at 3:30 Tuesday morning for Detroit after nineteen hectic hours in Chicago.

In one jam at the Field museum, the prince seized a youngster who was near to being trampled and pulled him from the heels of the crowd, probably saving his life.

Thousands upon thousands of persons were packed into dense lanes all along the route taken by the prince. From the bridge to the Congress hotel the sidewalks were jammed along Michigan avenue as the heir apparent to the throne of Britain bowed and smiled his way from the Louis Swift estate at Lake Forest to the University of Chicago.

His original hour of departure from Chicago—12:30 a. m.—was extended at the suggestion of the prince, who was busy enacting for more dances at that hour in the Saddle and Cycle club, where 100 society guests were his companions.

Chaos Follows Defeat of Shanghai Defenders

Shanghai.—Pandemonium in and around Shanghai is the aftermath of the collapse of the Chekiang defense of this city before the Kiangsu attack.

Thousands of Chekiang troops, deserted by their commanders and not knowing where to take themselves, are fleeing toward Shanghai over every possible available avenue leading from the former battle fronts.

Defeat of the Chekiang army was as crushing as it was complete, according to outspoken admission from the Chekiang leaders themselves, many of whom are fugitives either in the international settlement of Shanghai or aboard foreign warships in the Wangpoo river, just off this city.

Will County Electric League

Pupils Find Rules Simple In Better Home Lighting Contest Now Going On

The Better Home Lighting Contest, an educational movement international in extent, has aroused more interest among local school pupils than anything of a similar nature in years, according to the Will County Electric League which is conducting the local competition.

The purpose of the movement is educational—to conserve eyesight and to make for more enjoyable home-life. For that reason the co-operation of public schools and public school officials of the country has been enlisted. Pupils over ten years of age, enrolled in some public, private or parochial school have been made eligible to take part in the competition which is being made use of to bring the need for better home lighting directly to the attention of every home owner.

The 2500 pupils from the local schools registered for the contest are hard at work in an effort to draw one of the local, district or international prizes. Only by winning locally may they enter the wider competition for a $15,000.00 electrical home and various college scholarships.

In the contest for the $15,000.00 home, the school child will not find it difficult to follow the rules in order to win a prize. There are only four things that he or she has to do after they enter the contest. First the lessons in the Home Lighting Primer must be studied carefully. These lessons give the basis of the contest and teach the contestant the principles of better home lighting.

Continuing his studies in home lighting, the entrant visits the homes of two of his friends and investigates the lighting there. He notes the type of fixtures that his neighbors have in each room and marks this down on a chart in the primer.

Next he looks over the lighting in his own home and then marks down the kind of lighting that is installed there. After he does this he selects what he thinks are the proper fixtures for various rooms and pastes them on the pictures of the rooms contained in the primer.

Now, he does the last and the most important thing. He writes a 600 word essay on how his home should be changed to have proper lighting. By this time he has considerable knowledge about proper lighting and this duty is easy.

The work of the contestant will be judged for knowledge of the lessons in the primer, as shown by the essay, knowledge of the lessons as shown by the pasting of the fixtures in the drawings of the rooms, originality of ideas and clarity of the language in the essays, and thoroughness and neatness of work the story. Three thousand horses were used to give the cavalry and other thrilling effects of the wild dashes over miles of territory.

Cities were built up only to be destroyed by fire, 500 costumed and seamstresses worked for three months to make the costumes worn by the people. Ten thousand yards of cloth were worked into the costumes worn by the women while 25,000 yards of white muslin were used up in the regalia of the Klans men.

All school children should see this historical picture. The narrative is filled with tears and smiles. A brilliant cast lends animation to the story. THE DOUBLE ALARM

THE BANKER'S CREED

I believe no man can be a good banker who is not first a good citizen—in all the term implies.
I believe good citizenship rests on ability and willingness to pull one's own weight—with capacity not only for sturdy self-help—but also due regard for the rights of others.
I believe that the more points at which we touch human nature and human interests the more alive we become and the longer we stay so.

I believe we cannot prosper by applying yesterday's obsolete methods to today—that each man is in some measure master of his community's destiny—that good government is a matter of business—not politics—that to assist in all material, moral and spiritual upbuilding, is the fundamental of enlightened selfishness.

I believe we need more men of every class who will appreciate this—who will stand for something besides themselves.

I believe in efficiency—service and fraternity—in a close-knit community of interests and hopes—in a sane, broad-visioned stand that shall make for the banker-citizen, the banker-business man, the banker-farmer and the banker-everybody.—State Bank Division, American Bankers Association.

"Bean" Farming

BANKERS FOR BETTER FARMING

The Arkansas Bankers Association was recently presented with an object lesson on the value of good livestock and the worthlessness of the scrub stock common on too many farms. The Arkansas College of Agriculture had three cows comfortably quartered in a corner of the lobby at the convention hotel in Little Rock. One cow displayed was a purebred Jersey which made a profit of $85 last year, a second was a high grade cow, the product of a purebred bull and a scrub cow. She made a profit of $38. The third cow was a common scrub cow declared to be a detriment to Arkansas farming.

Tinley Park Garage Has Changed Hands Past Week

Mr. Habenicht invented a new type of air pressure water pump sometime ago and has been having quite a good success with it, selling quite a number. He is going to devote all his time now in the manufacture of these pumps. He will manufacture them at his own plant in Tinley Park. Mr. Habenicht has fully protected his invention with patent rights.
